A BRIEF HISTORY OF THE SHERIDAN POLLARDS
IN WHAT IS NOW PEEL, HALTON AND TORONTO, ONTARIO

Purpose of this History

One of the objectives of this report is to fill in the gaps in the family genealogy prepared by Maurice Pollard and updated since by several of the Sheridan Pollards, most recently Earle Brock Pollard of Winnipeg, Paul Plante of Brampton (pplante@idirect.com) and Chris Landry of Burlington (kristy@lara.on.ca). The genealogy file is stored on the Family Tree Maker site at http://www.familytreemaker.com/users/p/o/l/David-L-Pollard/. More importantly, however, I wanted to convey something of the personalities and lifestyle of the Sheridan Pollards, since so many of the family and area histories tend to be long on glorification of individuals (notably Barnett's history of the Clarksons) and on quaint quotations, and short on honest portrayal of just what pioneer life in Upper Canada was really like.

The Sheridan Pollards can be credited with some notable "firsts" in this part of Canada, but otherwise lived unspectacular but courageous and typical lives for the times. Their story is the story of most of the pioneer families of the times: a struggle against a harsh and heavily-forested wilderness, and a life of resettlement in a strange new land where community life and cooperation was not only the only alternative to loneliness and isolation, it was essential to their very survival.

The Sheridan Pollards are the descendants of Joshua Pollard Sr., a United Empire Loyalist who left his parents and siblings in the Billerica, Massachusetts area (near Boston) near the turn of the 18th century.

Upper Canada prior to 1811 - a Geographic Overview

Prior to 1788, Upper Canada was merely a part of the Province of Quebec, and its central region was called the Nassau or Home District. When Upper Canada was established in 1788, the central region consisted of 4 counties (see Exhibit 1). From East to West they were:
• York (including Toronto),
• Peel (now comprising, from North to South, Town of Caledon, City of Brampton, City of Mississauga), • Halton (including Oakville) and
• Hamilton-Wentworth

The counties were broken into several townships as shown Exhibit 1, each of which had several pioneer villages. The Pollard homestead was in the centre of a triangle of 3 villages in the Southern or Old Survey part of Toronto Township:
• Springfield (later called Credit or Erindale) to the Northeast, at the junction of Dundas Street and the Credit River, • Clarkson's Corners (later shortened to Clarkson) to the Southeast at the junction of the Railway and Clarkson Road, and
• Sheridan (originally called Hammondville) to the West, at the junction of the Peel-Halton county line and Middle Road (now QEW).

Toronto Township (now principally Mississauga) should not be confused with the City of Toronto well to the East. The village of Credit (now Erindale) should not be confused with Port Credit, the village at the mouth of the Credit River to the Southeast.

In 1806 there was only one non-Indian dwelling in the area, the Government Stopping House at the mouth of the Credit River. In 1806 a survey was conducted breaking the South part of what was then called Toronto Township Old Survey into 200-acre lots. By 1811 there were about 40-50 families in the Township, with the major concentration being 13 families in the Southwest corner (the Clarkson/Sheridan/Erindale area) and the next largest 7-8 on Dundas Street just East of what is now Erindale, on the other side of the Indian Reservation straddling the Credit River (see Exhibit 3).

The First 13 Families in Southwest Toronto Township

The original families each received a full 200-acre lot consisting of a (usually) rectangular lot designated by lot # and Concession # (see Exhibits 2-3). They were:

Concession I South was bounded on the North by Dundas Street, then a dirt trail opened in 1806 (Governor Simcoe's original military road to Hamilton & Windsor), graveled in 1836. Between Concession I and II ran the Middle Road or Commissioners' Road, also a dirt trail, carved out by the above families foot by foot. The Lakeshore Road between Concessions II and III was built later so the early Concession III owners probably traveled mainly by water on their Lake Ontario frontages. The first North-South road, other than the mandated sideroads carved out by the pioneers between every 5 lots as required in the initial survey, was what is now called Clarkson Road (between lots 28-29). Until then, travel to the Spring Creek grave-ground and other areas to the South was across farmers' fields. The Indian Trail running diagonally from the mouth of the Credit was the only other road in the area. See Exhibit 3.

The Arrival of Joshua Pollard Sr.

Joshua Pollard Sr., a United Empire Loyalist, and member of the Billerica branch of the Pollards (descended from Thomas Pollard who settled in Billerica, Massachusetts from Warwickshire, England in about 1692) was born in 1772 in Harvard, Massachusetts. He moved to Canada somewhere between 1792 and 1808. He moved first to Saltfleet, Ontario (now Stony Creek, Hamilton), and then, after a brief period as squatters near King & Bay Streets (fairly commonplace procedure in those days prior to being awarded a land grant), to Sheridan. He received a pie-shaped parcel of land of 200 acres from the Government in the Toronto Township Old Survey 1st Concession S. Lots 28-31, on petition on August 8, 1808. Ontario Archive #01C14003030 dated October 2511808 applies to this land. It is on what is called Middle Road or Commissioners' Road (now Queen Elizabeth Way or more precisely between the QEW and the North Sheridan Way service road adjacent thereto). On August 15, 1810 he signed off on the certificate granting final title to the property, acknowledging that he had "proved up" i.e. completed the requirements of building, fencing and clearing sufficient of the property as required by law at that time (see Exhibit 4).

The house was frame and log construction and twice the normal size (it was 38' by 26'), speculatively because of his intention to include an Inn on the premises once construction of Middle Road permitted it. The house was built near the road at the South end of Lot 30.

The new arrivals in Toronto Township came from three general areas. The largest group, including the Merrigolds, came from the Maritimes; they traveled together and each helped the others "proving up" i.e. clearing and fencing their properties. A second group came from the Pennsylvania area (including the Shooks and Mongers), while the Pollards and a few others came from Massachusetts. The two latter groups were United Empire Loyalists, though none of them is listed in the official UEL membership list, probably because none of their descendants bothered to go through the process of admission (it is not automatic). The latter two groups also helped each other in the proving up process e.g. Henry Shook helped Joshua Pollard clear his property and build his home, and vice versa (see Exhibit 4).

At the time, the area was uncleared and heavily forested wilderness (see photo of Orr Rd in Exhibit 5h). The concession and side roads were cleared foot by foot to meet the requirements of settling up as the homes were built. Five acres (about 200,000 sf) then had to be cleared on each lot, about 2.5% of the grant area, with rudimentary tools. The home had to meet minimum size requirements (300-400 sf), and was usually built of frame and log construction. Then the job of clearing additional land for crops began. Geographic accident left the Toronto Township Old Survey with land considerably less arable than the areas to the North, which probably accounts for their slower growth despite their earlier history—the first villages formally incorporated in Peel were Brampton and Streetsville, and Brampton was for years the capital of the region and its largest town.

The roads other than Dundas Street were not wide enough for horse-drawn carriages, so transporting possessions was a slow and difficult process, and early homesteads were undoubtedly very rudimentary. There was neither time nor materials to build schools until 1816 or church buildings until 1826, despite the religious fervour and limited literacy of most of the new residents. Services by traveling fundamentalist preachers were held once a month or so in homes in the area and annual revivals were held in tents by the roadside. Education was in the home, when time permitted. The first marked graves are dated about 1821, so even their Christian burials were at home in rudimentary plots. Only 6 of Joshua Sr.'s 12 children saw their 25th birthday. Although the legal system was reasonably well established early, there were few doctors in the area. Because the road system was so primitive, crop failures in the early years on the inferior soil would have been devastating and malnutrition would have been common. In some cases, land speculators acquired rights to lots that were never proven up, leaving travel distances between neighbours even further than the 1/4 mile along concession roads and 1 1/4 mile along sideroads. Wells had to be dug on each property to provide drinking water, and fences and barns constructed to hold animals.

By September 1, 1810 Joshua had been appointed (tax) collector for Toronto Township by the Quarter Sessions at York. Barnett (along with Hammond and Bull, the major researchers of pioneer life in Peel) thinks this made him the first appointed official in the township.

In 1811 on July 8 he was awarded "a license to keep a common Inn and Ale-house, at his residence", the first privately owned licensed Inn between the Humber and what is now Burlington, per Barnett's notes. On December 28 of that year he got a Tavern License, beating out his neighbour, Benjamin Monger, whose license was refused as being too close to the Pollards'. The Mongers and Pollards did not seem to associate much, despite the fact that the Shooks were close to both families. On Sept. 14, 1814 Joshua Sr. fined Monger two pounds for refusing a horse to Gen. Dewatteville during the war of 1812, according to the Proceedings of the Court of Quarter Sessions of York. This might be evidence of the torn loyalties many of the UEL's felt during this bitter conflict. Joshua Sr. served in the War of 1812 under Captain Chisholm's distinguished Flank Company of the York Militia, from 1812 to the end of 1814. This group apparently fought on the front lines of the conflict and faced heavy casualties. Joshua must have found it difficult to fight against the country his parents and siblings all still called home. Many of the Billerica Pollards mentioned in Maurice Pollard's book were revolutionary war heroes, though there is not much mention of action during the War of 1812.

In 1814, on October 22nd he again became an Assessor of the Court for Toronto Township, per the historical 1874 Directory of the County of Peel. In 1816-18 Joshua Sr. served on the Grand Jury for the Township, and during that time fined Joshua Clarkson (brother of William Clarkson, founder of the town) for non-attendance on the Jury. These and similar posts continued until 1834.

In 1819-21 the Toronto Township New Survey grants were awarded. By 1821 Toronto Township had 803 people, Chinguacousy had 412 and Albion had 110.

In 1823 his wife Mary Ann Whitsell (Weitzel) died and he remarried Keziah (maiden name unknown) and when she died in 1833 he remarried Maria Caslor, both apparently in Sheridan contrary to the Maurice Pollard book. Keziah is buried at Spring Creek and Maria Caslor is buried in Burgesville, Oxford (Ontario) Baptist Cemetery along with Joshua Sr.’s son William and several other Pollards.

Joshua Pollard Sr.’s and Jr.’s’ Church, School and Public Activities

Until the area’s first four churches were established in 1826, several preachers of different denominations gave sermons at various houses and outdoors. The Carman Methodist Church in the Southern section of the area was the worshipping place of the Bradleys, Merigolds, Hendershotts, Oliphants and Peers. The church called the Credit, Springbrook or Springfield Church of England (now St. Peters Erindale Anglican) in the Northeast area was the worshipping and burial place of the senior Shooks, Harris’, Conovers, Camerons, Mitchells, Adamsons, Taylors, Hammonds and Clarksons. Springfield’s Reverend James McGrath's grand-daughter was Mrs. A Harris of "Benares", an area pioneer house used as the setting for the 1960s Jalna TV series. Near St. Peter's was Springfield Methodist, now Erindale United, worshipping place of many families further North in the New Survey lands.

The Pollards are not part of any of these congregations. They belonged, with the Greeniaus', Hemphills, some of the Shooks, and the Hammonds and Gables, to the congregation established at the Red Schoolhouse. Although the Pollards of the time were Wesleyan Methodists, the Red Schoolhouse served as a school and place of worship for six different denominations as early as 1816, and the Pollards stayed loyal to this place of worship until the 1890s. By the 1860s and 1870s, more modern churches aligned to specific denominations were built in Erindale (Credit) and Clarkson, and many of the area families gravitated towards them. The Red Schoolhouse, which at one time was so popular a place of worship that it subsidized some of the other Methodist congregations, had apparently begun to lose its primacy by the time Sheridan Methodist Church was constructed in 1869. By this time Joshua Jr. had become a Baptist (not served by any of the existing churches). The distance of the Pollards' homestead from any of the newer church buildings, and Joshua Jr.’s personal involvement with Spring Creek Cemetery, accounts perhaps for their continued use of the non-denominational Spring Creek Cemetery as the family burial ground. Although the Mississauga historical walking tour guide says Spring Creek was established in 1824, Exhibit 5e shows Pollards buried there before then, and it is likely that Joshua Sr.'s unaccounted-for children are probably in unmarked graves there dating even earlier.

Ironically, perhaps, the decline in church attendance at the Red Schoolhouse in favour of the newer churches may have been the Pollards' own doing. The book on the history of Erindale says that many area churchgoers by the 1860s felt that it was not fitting to have a church where children were taken to worship "when there was a tavern down below" (Pollards' tavern). It is this sentiment that fostered the construction of Springfield Methodist (now Erindale United) in town. One could speculate that bitterness over this turn of events, when Joshua Jr. had dedicated so much to the Red Schoolhouse, might have led to his conversion to the Baptist Church by 1861.

In 1850 Joshua Sr. died and left the homestead to Joshua Jr. (see will Exhibit 8a) the eldest son still living there. Joshua Jr. held a number of posts. He was Secretary-Treasurer of Community Grave-ground (later Chambers' Spring Creek Grave-ground and now Spring Creek Cemetery) for 34 years. He directed the Red Schoolhouse, the first school in the area, and served as postmaster of Sheridan from Dec. 1, 1858 (a year after it was established) until May 18, 1867. Joshua Jr. was also the Magistrate for Sheridan in 1877.

The Red Schoolhouse (the school for District No.5) was on the Hammond/Whitsell property 1/4 mile West of Pollard's, and was deeded by Nick Whitsell (no apparent relation to the Nicolaus Weitzel who was Joshua Sr.'s father-in-law) to David Hammond schoolmaster in 1816 per Barnett. A 999-year lease dates from March 14, 1826 (Joshua Sr. being one of the 3 original trustees). Joshua Jr.'s wife Mariah Hill was Hammond's step-daughter. The school minute books have been saved from 1854 as part of Barnett's records and show Joshua Jr. as Board Chairman on the forefront of the fight for "free" schooling from that date until his death. Barnett credits Joshua Jr. as the leading pioneer of education in Peel. Other trustees of the day included neighbours such as Sam Wainwright, Gaylord Greeniaus (M.H. Greeniaus is, incidentally, current treasurer of Spring Creek cemetery), Stephen Oughtred, Erastus Hill, Geo Shunk, Edward Cavil, W.A. Thompson, W.R. Kelly, Charles Cameron and Henry Shook (Shook, grandfather of Adolphus Pollard's wife, was opposed to free education). School fees in those days included the cost of boarding the teacher and provision of firewood, partly in proportion to one's number of children. The school well was constructed at a volunteer "bee" in 1858.

The Oliver Hammond legal papers at the Ontario Archives contain Joshua Jr.'s signature along with Hammond's as Justices of the Peace in the 1860s. They also indicate that Joshua Jr. was an agent of the Mutual Fire Insurance Co. of Clinton in 1863.

Joshua Jr. also won a number of awards at local agricultural fairs. With eight children, commitments to school, church and public office, and operation of the family farm, he was as busy and prominent in the community as his father.
Farm and Town Life in the Late 1800s

By the middle of the 1800s most of Peel had been surveyed and granted, and life was a great deal less difficult than it had been 50 years earlier. Despite several economic depressions such as that in the 1870s, during which villages dropped in population by as much as 25%, some of the villages had grown large enough to be incorporated and develop their own infrastructure. The newspapers of the time came and went, and by 1877 only three papers remained, all of them in the capital of the county, Brampton, which by 1871 had a population of 2,000. Streetsville was the next biggest village with a population of 600. The Township of Toronto had 6,000 of Peel's 26,000 people, though Clarkson, Credit/Erindale and Sheridan had probably only about 100 people each. After generations of double-digit sized families, typical family size had dropped to about seven. Travel had become easier with the opening of more roads and the railway, which had supplanted the pony express sufficiently to bring about the demise of Bush's Inn. One thing had not changed: the original pioneer families were still a tight-knit group, many of whom had intermarried or gone into business together. Their churchgoing and children’s’ schooling also kept them in close touch with each other.

Of the 120 acres remaining of the Pollard homestead in 1870 (a total of 80 acres had been sold to the Falconers and Conrad Shook), 80 acres were under cultivation and the rest remained forested. Wheat, barley, oats, peas, corn, potatoes, carrots, beans and hay were being harvested by the Pollards (their crops were inventories in the census). They may have been marketed in Sheridan at the (Erastus D.) Hill & Pollard general store (Joshua Jr.’s wife’s family’s establishment) and possibly exported by rail as well. The Shooks had a mill next door for grinding grain, and mill products were apparently provided to the markets in Credit/Erindale as well. The 3 1/2 mile trip in those days would be by horse and cart up the Southdown Road that ran through the middle of the homestead, to Dundas Street and then East across the Indian Road to the town.

Joshua Jr.’s seven remaining children (one son, Joshua Brock, had died in Galveston, Texas en route to seeking gold during the rush to California in 1858, or, according to another report, fighting at the Alamo), traveled further and more often than previous generations could. Adolphus Theodore and his bride Hannah Shook had gone to New Zealand, and both engineer James and Stephen (the latter a recent medical school graduate) had moved to Toronto with their young families. Eleanor, the oldest child, was living with her barrister husband Edward Shortiss in Toronto, and their oldest son was a broker with the Stock Exchange. Erastus Derby had gone into partnership with Joseph Howes (Zylphia Adeline Pollard’s husband) of Trafalgar Township and opened Howes and Pollard, a grocery, shoe and bootmakers' business in the town of Oakville. Howes was also pursuing a career as a photographer, and had taken pictures of some of the Pollard family (see Exhibit 7). Joshua Jr.’s youngest son, Richard, apparently hadn't decided what he wanted to do. He was helping his father run the farm on the homestead, and also spending time with the Howes in Oakville where he worked as a telegrapher.

The photo exhibit Exhibit 7 shows photos of Joshua Jr. (Exhibit 7a), his wife Mariah Hill (Exhibit 7b), Adolphus' wife Hannah Shook (Exhibit 7c), Stephen (Exhibit 7d), Joshua Pollard Jr.’s home (Exhibit 7f), and a picnic reunion there in 1897 including members of the Pollard, Shook, Hendry, Rowe, Oliphant, Clarkson and Oughtred families (Exhibit 7e). In 1873 Joshua Jr. sold lots 28-9 to C&D Shook. Joshua Jr. and Richard Pollard are shown as residents of lots 30-31 in the 1873 Peel directory. Richard received the homestead by deed in 1877, shortly prior to Joshua Jr.'s death in 1882 (see copy of will, Exhibit 8b) and in 1877 the Directory lists Richard as owner of Maplegrove Farm Co. at Lot 30-31 only (there is no further record of the Maplegrove name). Richard married for the second time in 1889, and brought his new wife back to the home, but the land was sold in 1891 to Shook, Cook and Falconer.

Following are the records on each of the 8 children of Joshua Jr., from oldest to youngest. For location of Toronto addresses cited see Exhibit 9.

Eleanor Jane Pollard married Edward Shortiss. She signed a quit claim on the family property in 1890. He is listed in the 1872-73 directory as a customs warehouseman at 50 Gerrard St. W. The 1891 Toronto census shows the retired Methodist couple Edward & Eleanor Shortis and their two living children Thomas 28 (commercial traveler) and Maria 22 in St. John’s Ward. Thomas was president of Quaker Candy Company in Toronto in 1924.

Adolphus Theodore, commonly called Theodore, married Hannah Isabelle Shook, granddaughter of Henry Shook Sr. in 1863; his name in the marriage register and his quit claim on the Pollard homestead in 1883 and burial in Spring Creek in 1911 with Hannah are the only records of any kind of him in Peel. Even in 1851 (at 16) he is not included in the census with the rest of the family. He apparently moved to Bayfield, Ontario (perhaps near his stepmother and uncle William in nearby Burgesville) but the Municipal Offices and St. Andrew's United (formerly Methodist) church there have no record of him. Barnett says Clarkson's family notes purport him to have traveled in 1858 to New Zealand. He reappeared as a cutter for P.Jamieson in the 1888 Toronto Directory, living near his two children, Joshua & Oliver (see notes on them below). By 1892 he was in partnership as a tailor with Charles Spiers as “Pollard & Spiers”, 988 Bloor St. W.

Joshua Brock Pollard died September 23, 1858 in Galveston, Texas, en route to the gold rush of the time (or according to another report, fighting at the Alamo). He was 21 is buried at Spring Creek.

Erastus Derby Pollard set up Howes and Pollard in Oakville in about 1867 (see above) but is not in the 1871 Peel/Halton census. The 1872-73 Toronto Directory shows him as a commercial traveler at 266 Jarvis St. Toronto. He married Hattie (Harriet) Bush (Busch, Buch, or Buck), possibly related to the Bush Inn family noted earlier. He died, childless according to Maurice Pollard's book, in 1877 at age 37 and is buried at Spring Creek.

Zylphia Adeline Pollard married Joseph Howes (House). Howes is listed in 1834 as an "artist" in Trafalgar Township. One Oakville Library record shows Concession 8 New Survey Lot 8 PD as his address in an index dated 1877. In 1858 relatives William, Robert, & Dan Howes are listed at adjacent Con 7 NS Lot 8 and John Howes held Con 8 NS Lot 9. Another directory lists him in Colborne Street (now Lakeshore Blvd.) in Oakville. The 1871 census describes him as a "photographer", age 38, in Oakville. The same census lists his wife Zylphia at age 29, daughter Minnie, 7, and telegrapher Richard Pollard (her brother), Wesleyan Methodist age 22, at the same address. Presumably, because it predates it by 6 years, this is NOT the same property as the 2500 sf. "Oakville Village Lot D elk 6 part per drawings SW Kerr Aug. 1, 1836" described in Joshua Jr.’s will (property given to Zylphia in the will) "acquired by deed from John and Jane S. Barclay Dec.27,1877 and registered at Halton Jan.5, 1878". Perhaps they were Barclays' tenants until 1877. Howes & Pollard grocers and shoes (see above) was operating on Colborne Street in 1867 per the Peel Archives, though Erastus cannot be found in the 1861 or 1871 Oakville or Peel census. The Oakville/Halton records are very limited, and provide no trace of where Zylphia and her husband are buried.

James Madison Pollard was still in Peel in 1871 at age 27 per the census. The Maurice Pollard book says he moved to Oakville and married Isabelle (Bel) Cameron there, though there is no record of him ever having lived there. They moved to Toronto in 1873 and had 9 children between 1871 and 1886. James Pollard, engineer, first shows up at 16 Terauley (the old name for Bay St. north of Queen) in the 1872-72 Directory, and with HH Warren & Co, 83 St. David St. in the 1887 Directory, and at 316 Adelaide St. W in the 1891-95 Directories. There whereabouts from 1895 onwards is unknown, except that Isabelle died in 1922 and that James was living with his daughter Addie in 1924.

Dr. Stephen Ballard moved to Toronto in 1872-73 and married Maggie Corn(w)ell and had 2 daughters. Besides his photo in Exhibit 7d and his appearance in the 1851 & 1861 census, there is no record of him in Peel, not even on the quit claim deed on the homestead in 1891. He had various addresses in the Toronto City Directories (all as MD. Physician & Surgeon between 1873 and 1907; his most recent address was at 65 Shuter St.

Richard Franklin Pollard is listed in the 1871 census in both Peel and Oakville, and in the 1881 and 1891 Peel Census, still at the homestead. In 1881 he was there with his first wife Margaret, 32, and their 3 children along with their widower father Joshua Jr. & bachelor uncle Walter. In 1891 he was with his second wife Beatrice, then 32, and 4 children including a newborn (they had 4 more after that). See his connection with the Howes above. He signed the quit claim deed in 1890 on the homestead, shortly after taking his second bride there, and the homestead was sold to David Shook in 1890. His eldest son Joshua Warren moved to the US, his 3rd son Charles was in Toronto as a cabinetmaker in 1907, and his 4th son Victor, a machinist in Toronto in 1907, moved thereafter to Vancouver BC. Descendants, if any, of his first four sons are unknown. His 5th son, Richard Frederick, died in 1967, leaving a son F. Ross Pollard and a daughter Doreen Beth Pollard, both still living. I am in correspondence with F. Ross Pollard’s daughter, Chris Landry of Burlington to fill in some blanks here. Richard Franklin’s youngest son, John Ross Pollard, died in Vimy, France in WW1 service in 1916.

The Pollard Homes

A quote to Barnett from an elderly Mrs. Murphy, daughter of David Shook, who lived in the "first" Pollard house, and who died in 1964, reads as follows:

"The old house was, as I remember it, a very quaint old frame house, fair-sized, with a verandah across the front and the two sides, and the verandah had a curved slant to the top, something like a Chinese temple roof. It was East of the [Joshua Pollard Jr.’s newer 1854] brick house [Exhibit 7f] and close to the road. It was all intact when we went there to live, only the verandah was rather shaky. I remember it quite well - I thought it was a dear old house. It had a large fireplace in the kitchen part, but that was boarded over and the occupants always had the stove sitting in front of the fireplace. The mantel was there and the shelf over it. Some years after we went on the place my father had the place moved down below the hill. It was on the place that Mr. Woods owned. Mr. and Mrs. Mantell lived in it for many years until the Queen Elizabeth Way went through and then it was taken down. It didn't look the same after it was moved below the hill - the verandah was never replaced." This house was demolished in the 1930s—there are no pictures.

Registry records show Reg Jones lived in the newer house from 1944-52, after construction of the QEW, though before an additional expropriation in 1957 and just before the 1960 "interchange over at Shook's Hill Road" (now Robin Drive). Holling quotes Reg Jones as saying a willow he (Jones) planted still stands inside the cloverleaf, suggesting the house was dismantled after that date. The registry records show many transfers and expropriations (easements), and construction of apartments and houses at the Northwest and North of Lot 30.
The vacated site was used as a dump site for Peel prior to opening of the current Britannia Road dump.

In 1999 the ex-dump section of the homestead property still had no residential construction on it.
It would be nice if the Oughtreds, Cordinglys and other pioneer descendants of the area could get together and lobby the City of Mississauga to develop the site as a Sheridan Heritage Village, blending commercial and historical uses (there are many heritage homes in the area sitting unused that could be moved with the blessing of both the Heritage Foundation and the current landowners to facilitate development at their current sites).

Descendants of the Sheridan Pollards in Toronto

Oliver Herman Pollard (Adolphus’ second son and the author’s great grandfather), who at 14 lived with his mother’s family (the Shooks) next to the Pollard homestead in 1881, appears in the 1887 City Directory as "ptr Mail job dept. bds [bed-sitting room] 66 Richmond St. W., and in the 1891 City Directory as "comp Mail Job Printing Co, 37 Shirley St.", Ward 6. "Mail" appears to mean the Toronto Mail, precursor of the Globe & Mail. Next door at 39 Shirley in 1891 lived his elder brother Joshua B., tailor, whose marriage to Lovina Carroll of Sheridan in 1890 is in the records of St. Peter's Erindale Church. Frank Herbert Pollard, Oliver’s younger brother, a barber, shows up in the 1892 Toronto Directory.

The history of Oliver Herman Pollard and his descendants has been developed in detail by Earle Pollard, and this history will be transcribed and added to the next edition of this paper. To my knowledge, I am the only male descendent of Oliver to return to the Toronto area (most of my relatives live in Winnipeg and are associated with Pollard Banknote Ltd., the successor to Saults and Pollard printers founded by Oliver Herman.

There are fifteen male Sheridan Pollards (outside the Oliver Herman branch) whose descendants, if any, are unknown. These are listed in the Appendix to this paper entitled “Loose Ends”, and I will be following them up first before tracking down descendants with other surnames.

I am also proposing to write a novel, or at least a short story, that will attempt to describe the life and times of Joshua Pollard Sr. a little more vividly than the above anecdotes, dates, and facts could hope to do.
Appendix One - Loose Ends

1. Male lineage loose ends:
   • Children of Joshua Sr.:
     • James II (b. 1816) is a mystery - no info on him at all, though he is in Joshua Sr.’s 1849 will, and there is a James Pollard at ‘Div V Pg. 9’ of the 1871 Toronto Twp census (to follow up) • Walter (b. 1822) died at age 65, but his whereabouts throughout his life are unknown, except that he returned, unmarried, to the homestead in 1881 shortly before his death
   • Children of William (Joshua Sr.’s brother):
     • Columbus G. (b. 1848) died in 1889 in Burgesville, Oxford, Ontario - that’s all we know of him
   • John Pollard, Columbus’ brother, is even more of a mystery - we have nothing on him at all
   • Children of Adolphus Theodore (Joshua Sr.’s son):
     • Frank Herbert (b. 1868), the millionaire barber-bookie, reported to have had a son and a daughter, listed in Toronto Directory in 1906 at 272 Dundas Av.
   • Children of James Madison (Joshua Sr.’s son):
     • William E. (b. 1876), last listed in Toronto Directory 1895 as a “wks” for AM Watch Case Co. at 22
       Alice Street
     • James Harold (b. 1878), last listed in Toronto Directory 1907 as a printer for the News at 13 Baldwin
       Street
     • Charles (b. 1882), last listed with parents in Toronto Directory 1901
     • Stephen R. (b. 1884), last listed in Toronto Directory 1905 as a printer for the News at 13 Baldwin
       Street
   • Children of Richard Franklin (Joshua Sr.’s son):
     • Joshua Warren (b. 1874), last listed as moving to the US about 1891
     • Arthur F. (b. 1877), last listed as having two wives Bella Reid and Marion Ellison
     • Charles B. (b. 1890), last listed in Toronto Directory 1907 as cabinetmaker at 11 Afton Street (living with parents)
     • Victor (b. 1891), last listed in Toronto Directory 1907 as machinist with Stewart Howe & Meek, at 11
       Afton Street (living with parents)
     • John Ross (b. 1898), died in action in Vimy France in 1916 (any children?)
   • Children of Richard Frederick (Joshua Sr.’s grandson, Richard Franklin’s son)
     • F. Ross (b. 1930), still living in Toronto area per daughter Chris Landry in Burlington
     • Also need to confirm that Richard Franklin had only 1 son, 1 daughter

2. Follow up Baptist cemetery records at Burgesville, Oxford, Ontario for “missing Pollards” 1891 onwards
3. Look at James Pollard’s (Joshua Sr.’s brother) family bible held by Pierre Plante in Brampton
4. Look at Joshua Sr.’s family bible held by Chris Landry in Burlington (905-634-6904) and discuss Richard Franklin - Richard Frederick - F. Ross Pollard line
5. Confirm Joshua Sr.’s whereabouts 1792-1807 in Saltfleet Ontario records
6. Investigate disappearance of Adolphus Theodore in Bayfield
7. Ask about any other info on Pollards from Mississauga Heritage Foundation
8. Review Barnett scrapbooks and Perkins Bull collection including 2 photo albums at Mississauga Library Heritage (Ruth Conrad) Collection
9. Call Jim & Betty Morgan in Fonthill 905-892-5315 re: missing Pollards, personal details

Appendix 2: LIST OF EXHIBITS

Exhibit 1:
The map shows the “Province of Canada” as it existed for most of the early 1800s. Historians point out that Peel region used the name “Toronto” in the 1700s, well before it was used by the City to the East.

Exhibit 2:
This map shows land holdings in 1871, with original 1808 Pollard land grant shaded. The key features of the community prior to the 1850s, the Red Schoolhouse, Spring Creek Grave-ground, and the Clarkson railway station, are shown. Exhibit 2b shows the current streets of the area, with the original 1808 Pollard grant area in yellow, and heritage properties included in the Mississaugua Heritage walking tour marked as red dots.

Exhibit 3:
This map shows only the first wave of settlers, prior to the 1820s, when the Mississaugua Indians sold off the rest of their land in the area and moved North, opening up the river property and the land North of Dundas Hwy. for settlement.

Exhibit 4:
Joshua Pollard Sr.’s “proving up” certificate; the 3 gentlemen all vouched for each other’s certificates

Exhibit 5 (photos by Dave Pollard):
5a. Southern part of the Pollard homestead as it stands today, taken facing South inside the cloverleaf of the QEW where Reg Jones, last occupant of the second (Joshua Jr.’s, built 1854) Pollard house, planted a willow tree (see Exhibit 7f for a picture of the house)
5b. Facing East across the land, still vacant since the Mississaugua dump of the early 1900s was closed and bulldozed over, showing a Holiday Inn at right, not too far from where Joshua Pollard built the first inn in the region in 1811
5c. Gravestone of Adolphus Theodore Pollard (1835-1911) and his wife Hannah Isabella (Shook) (1842-1921) at Spring Creek
5d. Gravestone of Walter Pollard (1822-1887), youngest son of Joshua Sr., at Spring Creek
5e. 5e1 and 5e2: Two pictures of a long gravestone with, from top to bottom, unknown Joshua Pollard (d. Feb 10, 1823 Age 41); Keziah Pollard (d. 1833 Age 51) 2nd wife of Joshua Sr.; John Pollard (d. 1823 Age 22), eldest son of Joshua Sr.; Elizabeth (Betsy) Pollard Stafford (d. 1837 Age 32), eldest daughter of Joshua Sr.; Joseph Pollard (d. 1821 Age 6), fifth son of Joshua Sr.; Mary Ann (Whitsell) Pollard (d. 1823 Age 51), first wife of Joshua Sr. These are among the earliest burials in Spring Creek.
5f. Gravestone of Joshua Pollard Sr. (1772-1850)
5g. 5g1-5g3: Three sides of gravestone monument at Spring Creek with, on 1st side, Joshua Pollard Jr. (1813-1882) and his wife Mariah (Hill) (1814-1876); 2nd side Maggie Bell Pollard (1847-1883) 1st wife of Richard F. Pollard; 3rd side Joshua Brock Pollard (1837-1858) 2nd son of Joshua Jr. and his brother Erastus Derby Pollard (1840-1877)
5h. Orr Road, formerly the Merigold Road at Con. 3S, Lot 28-30. This road is still heavily forested on both sides, much as it must have been as a dirt trail for carriages en route from Hamilton to Toronto. This would be what the settlers first saw (and had to clear) when they arrived in the 1810s.

5i. Bradley House built c. 1830, now a museum, moved inland from waterfront Con 3S Lot 28; owned by the Bradleys, Merigolds and Beardsleys. Bradleys were Maritimers rather than UEL, so the decor here would be similar, but more rustic and less severe than the Pollards would have had when Joshua Sr. was raising his young family. Furniture shown is all reproductions except the corner piece behind the spinning wheel. The sitting room also served as a place of worship in those days.

5j. As above.

5k. Russell Bush’s Inn at Con 3S Lot 29-30, built in the 1830s after he bought the property from the Merigolds. No longer an inn by 1871, it is now a private residence.

5l. Driveway to Clarkson’s house, much as it would have appeared in the early 1800s. By comparison, Joshua Pollard Sr.’s house, unusually (and in anticipation of it serving as an inn) was built very close to the road (which also probably doomed it when the road was widened).

5m. Proctor’s House built c.1840 at Con 2S Lot 29, just South of Spring Creek. Owned by Proctors and Cavans. Also at the end of a long winding road. This house was probably frequented by the Pollards and may have been the home of William Pollard when he lived on this lot in the 1840s.

Exhibit 7 (photos from Peel Archives, Brampton):

7b. Mariah Hill (1814-1876) c. 1870, wife of Joshua Pollard Jr.
7c. Hannah Isabelle Shook (1842-1921) c. 1870, wife of Adolphus Theodore Pollard
7d. Dr. Stephen Pollard (1846-19xx) c. 1870, brother of Adolphus Theodore Pollard, medical school grad photo

Exhibit 8(a): Will of Joshua Pollard Sr. [my annotations in square brackets]
In the name of God Amen ---- this twelfth? day of March in the year of our Lord 1848, I, Joshua Pollard [Sr.] of the Township of Toronto in the Home District and Province of Canada, farmer, being weak? in body but of perfect mind and memory, thanks be given unto God for the same, therefore calling into mind the mortality of the body knowing that it appointed unto all men once to die, do make and ordain this my last will and testament.

That is to say, first of all I give and recommend my soul unto the hand of Almighty God that gave it, and my body I recommend to the Earth to be buried in decent Christian burial at the discretion of my Executors, and, as touching? such worldly estate ---- which? it hath pleased God to bless me in this life, I give, demise, and dispose of the same in the following manner and forms viz.:

First I give and bequeath to Maria [Caslor] my dearly beloved [third] wife one good cow, four good sheep, all the furniture and building? she had and brought to my house at our marriage and one third? of all the building made since our marriage; also I give and bequeath unto my said wife the following yearly payments, annuities and privileges to be paid, done and performed by my son Joshua Pollard [Jr.] so long as she my said wife Maria may live and remain my widow viz. The sum of 5 pounds in cash or provisions annually at her option, ten cords of good hard fire wood to put into the wood shed yearly, the cow and four sheep to be well kept both summers and winters, also the use of the following viz. the house and out houses attached being the premises I now occupy together with a certain piece of land lying and being next [to] the Middle Road [now the Queen Elizabeth Way], and between the house and garden fence and the Eastern line of my farm to be fenced off from the said Easterly line fence to the garden between the third and fourth rows of apple trees, so that my said widow may have free use of three rows of said trees; also the use of the front yard for all necessary purposes in passing and repassing both in and out; also one cooking stove and furniture, one box stove, one table, one bedstead in front room, two ---- and three ---- chairs, and privilege of one third of the garden and so much of the cherries, prunes?, plums, and currents as she may require for her own use, but not to exceed one third yearly, that may be in the gardens and front yard.

At the demise or marriage of her my said wife all of the above yearly payments and privileges are to cease and revert to the proper use and benefit of my said son Joshua Pollard [Jr.] to whom I will and bequeath all my said estate property being a part of lots 30 and 31 [lots 28-29 having been sold to the Shooks] in the first concession south of Dundas Street, Township of Toronto, Home District and Province of Canada, containing 100 acres of land, or the same more or less, to have and to hold the same on the condition that he the said Joshua Pollard do and shall well and truly pay, keep and perform the before-mentioned yearly payments and privileges, as well as the following viz.:

To my son William Pollard [b.1810] I will and bequeath the sum of 50 pounds currency to be paid in 4 yearly payments, the first to be due and payable at the expiration of one year from the date of my decease.

To my son James Pollard [II] I will and bequeath the sum of 100 pounds currency to be paid in 4 yearly payments in like manner.

To my daughter Lucinda the wife of Garrett Westerfelt I will and bequeath the sum of 25 pounds, and to my daughter Olive the sum of 25 pounds, the last mentioned daughter being the wife of Dennis Spencer, all to be paid in like manner by 4 yearly payments.

Also to my son Walter I give the sum of 200 pounds to be loaned at interest during his natural life, the interest to be paid to him annually from one year from my demise, and at his death should he the said Walter Pollard leave no heir of his body born in wedlock, the said 200 pounds I will and bequeath to my three sons and two daughters viz.
